

The Path and Practice of Sacred Living Guided by Horses and Nature

October 6, 2024, 9:00am-3:30pm

Location: Pebble Ledge Ranch Novelty, Ohio

Guided by Jackie Stevenson and the Spirit of Leadership team and herd

We will journey together to explore, experience, and embody seven sacred practices on the path of Sacred Living. This path is a sacred practice where everyone belongs, everyone is essential, and everyone matters, where leadership is shared and offered to all.

Seven Sacred Practices in Sacred Living

- Attuning and Being Present
- Holding Sacred Space
- Inspiring Leadership and Teamwork in families and our workplaces
- Listening Within and to Another
- Engaging Courageously
- Embodying Awareness
- Balancing Mind, Body, Emotions and Spirit

All Relationships are Sacred
Sacred Practice is Always Relational

What is a sacred relationship?

- A sacred relationship is a relationship in which we are inspired to see the divine in ourselves and in other people and in our horses.
- Sacredness is an embodied felt experience. It is a knowing deep within, a knowing of who you really are and seeing other beings with full acceptance, for who they truly are and the best of who they are.
- In sacred practice, everyone belongs, everyone is essential, and everyone matters. Leadership is shared and offered to all.
- We are all part of a collective circle of relationships, and all are present in some form; past, present, future.

We will wander in the forest above the beautiful ancient grandfather and grandmother ledges. Many sacred and ceremonial sites have revealed themselves and welcome us to learn from them. Honoring and remembering our ancestors we will become more aware of how we might bring forward their gifts that live through us.
